

Terrible Suffering

Eczema All Over Baby's Body.
"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema, and at sixteen months of age, his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema spread all over his body. We had to put a mask or cloth over his face and tie up his hands. Finally we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few months he was entirely cured. Today he is a healthy boy." Mrs. Inez Lewis, Bellingham, Maine.
Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood diseases and builds up the system. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

AMERICAN HELD FOR RANSOM

Mexican Rebels Loot Train and Kidnap a Cattleman

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 13.—Holding up the southbound Mexico Northwestern passenger train, which left here this morning about 2.10 kilometers south of Juarez, rebels looted the mail and baggage cars and took John T. Cameron, a prominent cattleman of the Southwest from the train, holding him for ransom.

Cameron was on his way to the Mormon colonies near Casas Grandes to purchase cattle for importation.

ALBERT E. GOODRICH

Well-Known Resident of Stamford Died Friday.

Albert E. Goodrich, a well-known resident of Stamford died Friday afternoon at his home in that town, aged 65 years and 10 months. His death was caused by valvular disease of the heart, with which he had suffered for some time. His condition had grown worse since July, and yet his death at this time was not expected.

Mr. Goodrich was born in North Adams and was the son of the late Thomas Palmer and Mrs. Goodrich. Most of his life was lived in Stamford where he was engaged in farming and was a thoroughly respected citizen. He took an interest in the affairs of the town and was always ready to support measures which tended to the welfare of the community. He was a veteran of the Civil war.

Mr. Goodrich leaves a widow two sons and a daughter, Clarence A. Goodrich of Waitsburg, Wash., Howard J. Goodrich of Stamford and Mrs. George E. Davis of Bennington. He also leaves two sisters and a brother, Mrs. B. M. Wilsey of Nebraska, Mrs. J. Loring Thayer of Rochester and Arthur T. Goodrich, who lives in the west.

ORIGIN OF THE PEARL.

The Prized Gem Only the Brilliant Sarcophagus of a Worm.

Science has discovered the real origin of the pearl to be a worm. Dr. Hugh M. Smith gives some interesting information on this subject in the National Geographic Magazine.

We know that almost any foreign body—a grain of sand, a bit of mud or shell, a piece of seaweed or a small animal—may by its irritation cause the mollusk to cover it with nacre and make it the nucleus of a pearl, but the largest part of the annual pearl crop of the world is due to parasites that normally pass a part of their life cycle within the shell of the pearl oyster.

Minute spherical larvae of marine worms known as cestodes become imbedded in the soft tissues, as many as forty having been found in one Ceylon oyster. As the result of irritation the oyster forms a protecting sac about the intruder, and then, if the larva dies, its body is gradually converted into carbonate of lime, and the pearly mass proceeds to grow with the shell.

If the larva lives it may pass into the body of the strong jawed trigger fishes which prey on the pearl oysters, there undergoing further development. Ultimately it reaches the body of the great rays, which in turn eat the trigger fishes. In the rays the worms attain full development and produce larvae that are cast into the sea and find lodgment in pearl oysters. Thus the cycle is begun once more.

We may literally accept the saying of a celebrated French investigator that "the most beautiful pearl is in reality only the brilliant sarcophagus of a worm."

A Twice Told Tale.

The late A. L. Williams of Topeka, general attorney for the Union Pacific was once on a trip with a party of friends in a private car. While in Denver one of the party, a man of convivial habits, came in the car late one night and found Mr. Williams playing solitaire. The convivial one was enough under the influence of liquor to be talkative and proceeded to tell Mr. Williams a long story of his domestic unhappiness. The next morning, when sober, he mentioned the fact that he had talked too much the night before and requested that anything he might have said would not be repeated. Mr. Williams, in order to relieve the man's embarrassment, said: "That's all right. I never listened to you and have no idea what you said."

That night the man returned in the same condition. Looking sternly at Mr. Williams, he said:

"Now, damn you, you said you didn't listen to me last night, so I'm going to tell you the whole story again, and you've got to listen."—Kansas City Star.

On the Firing Line.

For glory? For good? For fortune or fame?

Why, no for the front where the battle is on!

Leave the rear to the dolt, the lazy, the lame.

Go forward, as ever the valiant have gone.

Whether city or field, whether mountain or mine.

Go forward, right on to the firing line.

Whether newsboy or plowboy or cowboy or clerk.

Fight forward, be ready, be steady, be first.

Be fastest, be bravest, be best at your work.

Exult and be glad; dare to hunger, to thirst.

As David, as Alfred. Let dogs skulk and whine.

There is room but for men on the firing line.

Aye, the place to fight and the place to fall.

As fall we must all in God's good time. It is where the manliest man is the wall.

Where boys are as men in their pride and prime.

Where glory gleams brightest, where brightest eyes shine.

Far out on the roaring red firing line. —Joseph Miller.

Bill Nye's Disappointment.

Representative Nye came to the breakfast table at his hotel one morning, chuckling to himself, and he explained that he had just thought of a boyhood incident for the first time in many years. It was when the Nye family were living on a farm in Wisconsin. He went to the pump one noon to wash his face after toiling in the fields all morning and was met by Bill Nye, his elder brother, who had been at work in another part of the farm. Bill looked at him as if he were a stranger and asked seriously, "Is your name Nye?"

"It is," replied Frank, with equal seriousness.

"Why, that's my name, too," went on Bill. "Wonder if we could be any relation. Where were you born, friend?"

"I was born in Maine."

"Well, this is interesting," said Bill. "I wouldn't doubt at all if we're related. Ever have any brothers?"

"Yes, one older brother and one younger brother," replied Frank.

"Oh, well, it can't be the same family, then," said Bill, in a disappointed tone. "I had two brothers myself, but mine were both younger."—New York Press.

Two Puzzles.

Willard S. Straight of the Morgan banking house said in a recent letter from Peking:

"The things that puzzle and perplex us in the Chinese become, on closer knowledge, simple, and so, no doubt, do we perplex and puzzle the Chinaman till he gets to know us better."

"It is like a mandarin from the far interior who dined with me the other evening. In his honor the dinner was very Chinese. One course consisted of eggs apparently quite whole, yet within them was a delicate salad of mushrooms, lettuce, nuts and mustard."

"It puzzles me," I said to the mandarin, "how all these things are put inside a whole egg."

"My guest took up an uncut magazine from a table."

"But it puzzles me still more," he said, peering between the leaves, "how you manage to put printing in here!" —Washington Star.

Let the Cat Out of the Bag.

A certain English innkeeper's family conducted a weekly raffle. In this raffle the prizes were turkeys, ducks, young pigs, baskets of eggs and such like rural commodities. A quantity of steel disks, numbered from 1 to 25, were put in a black bag, and the little daughter of the innkeeper put her hand in the bag and drew a disk for each speculator in turn. The person whose number was the highest got the prize.

Well, it had been noticed that the innkeeper's wife had got the prize pretty frequently, but nothing was thought of this by the simple, honest rural folk.

One evening, though, the little girl, with her hand in the bag, paused. It was her mother's turn, and she did not draw forth her mother's disk in her usual quick and careless way. She rummaged about. The other rafflers looked at one another oddly. The innkeeper said:

"Come, come, child, hurry up."
"But, father," said the little girl, "I can't find the hot one."

FAITH OF THE FOREST.

Curious Traits of One of the Savage Tribes of Siberia.

Concerning one of the obscure races of northwestern Siberia a traveler writes: "A few of the traits of these curious people may prove of interest, as they show that environment is the strongest factor in determining character. Their intense superstition is accounted for by innate fear of all things they cannot understand. Their shyness, dislike of strangers and dread of their lamas and chiefs are again the result of superstition and seclusion. Sadness and melancholia are stamped on their faces, as is natural to a people who are in constant fear of the gent of the mountains, rivers and forests, whose whole time is taken up with propitiating the gods lest evil befall them."

"The Uriankhai is a product of the forest as the Arab is of the desert. The one is the antithesis of the other. Environment is molded the character of each to its surroundings. The fearless believer in one God, the nomad of the sunlit desert, compares strikingly with the superstitious inhabitants of dark, damp forests, fearsome of evil spirits and cowering under their witch doctors."

"All through life the forest dweller is in fear of offending the deities, and at death his corpse is carried out and placed on some lone hilltop, where the wild beasts are expected to devour it if the man has led a good life, but had Uriankhai have not that doubtful honor bestowed upon them."—Chicago News.
